SENTIMENT IN FAVOR OF APPOR-TIONMENT FOR WATER FUND.

Increase of $8,000,000 in Assessable Valuation of Property-Some Interesting Financial Calculations by Conservative Men.

Greater Kansas City will be at least a $500,000 city this year, so far as revenues are concerned. Below are given conservative estimates from those who keep close track of the city's financial affairs. They show that on a valuation of only $68,000,000 on land, personal property, banks and merchants' stocks, with a 9.7 mills levy for general purposes, the revenue from taxation will be $650,600. If 10 mills can be levied for general purposes, $680,000 will be realized. Upon the final decision of this question depends $20,400 of revenue. For several years past the interest on the city hall and O. K. creek sewer bonds has been paid out of the general fund. This has taken 4-10 of a mill, but this year 3-10 of taken 4-19 of a mill, but this year 3-19 of a mill will suffice. City counselor Middle-brook decided that the old method must be pursued, but last night he found a later decision which he thinks will permit a special levy and give the general fund the benchi of the 3-19 of a mill.

It is conservatively estimated that the city will have from $55,000 to $55,000 to apportion. The annexed territory brought in about $5,000,000 of real estate, and there is an increase of about $5,000,000 from the city proper. Before the board of equalization met, the total assessable valuation of the city was $98,390,000. There was a net raise of from $590,000 to $750,000 on personal and merchants' property, but the heavy reductions in banks will bring the net valuation down to about $88,000,000.

The tax levy, as previously stated in The Journal, will be il mills, no matter which way the city counselor finally decides. If the 19 mills can be used for the general fund, the levy will be distributed as follows; General fund.

ing number was a recitation from "Otherlo," by Miss DeWitt, of the Humboldt school.

Superintendent Kirk described the surroundings and avocations which he said were influential in the development of Shakespeare's mind for the work in which it proved so masterful. The speaker attributed much of the poet's strength of imagination and vigor of thought to the fact that he grew up in the country. "Bring a boy up in the city." he said, "and he may struggle to a normal manhood; bring him up in the country and he most surely will. All the craft and quickness of wit and knowledge of the world that belong to the city or village reared lad are nothing in the making of a man when compared with the rugged stability and the sensibilities unblunted with which the boy of the country comes to maturity."

Speaking of Shakespeare's opportunities for early education. Mr. Kirk said, "Fortunately he spent but few of his days in school, learning but a limited number of pages of very bad Latin and no English at all. Shakespeare's English came from no high school or college, but he made it him.

"The women of Shakespeare," said Miss Archer, "are his own creations. "While he appropriated a great many plots and male characters from previous writings, his treatment of the female characters cnhis treatment of the female characters en-titles him to exclusive rights to these charming aspects of womankind." In the course of her paper Miss Archer dis-cussed all the noted ones of Shakespeare's women, which, she said, "with few ex-ceptions, appear in their natural sur-roundings of refinement and seclusion. afterward was illustrated last night in the case of "Filley" Cook, he of the megaphone volce. Cook is a St. Louis product. For years he was one of Chauncey I. Filley's leutenants, and thereby acquired the name of "Filley" Cook. He and "de old man" quarreled, and Cook came to Kansas City a few weeks before the last election, and at once injected his voice and his "infloonce" into the campaign.

His voice is really a wonderful thing. It is so hoarse and loud that, when it rasped out at a ward meeting or rally, it struck surprise into the souls of all who heard it, and commanded attention. For these reasons "Filley" Cook's voice was used frequently throughout the campaign as an announcer and a queller of tumults at grand rallies and other political round-ups.

After the election Cook conceived the idea that he was entitled to a benefit. So he had cards printed, rented old Turner hall at 1922 Grand avenue, advertised a cakewalk, dancing contests, boxing bouts and other amusements, and, wearing a frock coat, a high collar and white tie, sat at the entrance last night and waited for the half dollars to roll in.

But none came. A few of his friends dropped in, but not enough to justify giving the show, which proves the assertion that politicians are grateful—before election.

The customary dinner was served at 6.20, and at 8 o'clock the business meeting was held. Trade topics were discussed. The national association is trying to bring about a more uniform system of commercial reports, and is being well supported by nearly all of the local associations. The Kansas City association has always been closely in touch with the national management, and is on this subject. Delegates were selected to represent the city at the third annual meeting of the national association at Detroit, June 22 to 24. Those chosen were: Albert Q. Chase, W. H. Taylor, Joseph H. Roy, P. H. Slattery, F. P. Church, O. V. Dodge.

The alternates were: John H. Wiles, A. B. Colton, Jerome Twichell, W. Z. Lawton, E. L. McClure and F. A. Green.

There are twelve districts, each member of the quorum of twelve having charge of the work in one of them.

The matter of the debt of Graceland college, an institution at Lamoni, Ia., conducted under the auspices of the church, was discussed by the conference yesterday and will be the subject for further consideration at to-day's session. YOUNG GOLD HUNTER KILLED IN ALASKA APRIL 3.

Met at Depot by Weeping Relatives-Funeral Will Take Place This Afternoon-Gypsy Woman's Remarkable Prediction.

When the train over the Burlington road from the Northwest arrived in the Union depot at 8:15 o'clock last night a little group of men, whose eyes were red from weeping, stood on the platform to meet it. They were the father and brothers and an uncle of Louis L. Weidlein, who was killed by the terrible avalanche of snow at Sheep camp on Chilkoot Pass trail, Alaska, April , and whose body was among the first reso, and whose body of the unfortunate young gold hunter was in the baggage car, and when the train had come to a standstill it was immediately transferred to a conveyance in waiting and taken to Stine's undertaking establishment, followed by the grief stricken relatives.

After the outer case had been opened it was found that the body was enclosed in a hermetically sealed galvanized iron cas-

The scene when the body was revealed to the relatives was extremely pathetic. The body was in an excellent state of preservation, and the features showed little of the suffering which Louis Weidlein must have endured when he met death by suffocation beneath the snow. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Phillip Weidlein, father of the young man, said last night that it is the wish of the family that the funeral services, which will be at his home, be private. Rev. Mr. E. P. Schueler, of the Children's Memorial English Lutheran church, will officiate both at the services at the house and at the

Mrs. Blodgett declined. She said she had no forebodings of the future and consequently had no reason to want to pierce the veil and see what was to be. She told the woman the only thing she might take as a cause for concern was the fact that her son was in the Klondike and exposed to dangers there. Incidentally she showed the old woman the picture of her son taken with Will Klepper and Louis Weidlein, who went with him to the gold fields. The old woman complimented her on having such a fine looking son, looked at the photograph for a moment and then said:

"It's too bad; they are fine young men. "It's too bad; they are fine young men, out only two will live to see home again." Mrs. Blodgett laughed at the woman's Mrs. Blodgett laughed at the woman's statement and paid no further heed to it until the news of the avalanche came later. Then as she read that Louis Weidlein had been found among the dead she recalled the old woman's words. The fact that by some means the random statement of the woman had been at least partly fulfilled was a coincidence that caused her to remember it quite well. The body of Mr. Weidlein arrived in Kansas City last evening. Blodgett is still in the Klondike and is known to be all right, and while no definite information has come from Klepper, it is believed he also escaped.

ty for holding up and robbing the express messenger on a Pittsburg & Gulf train the night of January 3 last. He was out on a bond of $2,000 while awaiting trial. He left a wife and two children. It was rumored in this city yesterday that Dimmitt committed suicide. The dispatches from Butler say he died of heart disease.

Dimmitt was formerly a mail clerk, and was dismissed for opening a registered letter. Later he went into the newspaper business and was working at that when he died.

The police of this city believed Dimmitt was guilty of the train robbery, but had little hopes of convicting him. He was arrested at the Union depot February 22 while he and another man were trying to board the front end of a Memphis train that was pulling out of the depot. Dimmitt's companion escaped. It was thought they intended to climb over the coal tender after the train had left the city and force the engineer to stop, when the two men would rob the express car. WIN LAURELS IN CANTATA. Manual Training High School Chorus Presents "David, the Shepherd Boy." The presentation at the Coates opera louse last night of the cantata, "David, the Shepherd Boy," by the Manual Training high school chorus, assisted by local talinigh school chorus, assisted by local talent, under the direction of Miss Olive B. Wilson, was marked by a degree of excellence extremely gratifying to patrons and creditable to the teacher and instructress. Miss Wilson has been in charge of music and manual training in the Kanssas City high school since September last, but has been supervising these departments in public schools elsewhere for several years, and that, upon this her first public appearance, she should score so brilliant a success is a matter of congratulation not only to her but to those whose children are being trained by her. It is worthy of mention that the study of the cantata was begun in November, at which time many of those who last night sang easily in A could scarcely sing in E.

The event filled the opera house to its full capacity and while the youthful element was in the majority, there was a sufficient representation of their elders to show the genuine interest taken in the work.

The cast of characters included the following: David, Will Ormsby; King Saul, ent, under the direction of Miss Olive B.

The cast of characters included the following: David, Will Ormsby; King Saul, George Olmi; Jonathan, Fred Swain; Jesse, Ed De Vemie; Samuel, Fred H. Clark: Elder, Ben F. Lindsley; Abner, George L. True; Abigail, shepherd queen, Sarah Winston Wilson, Abigail's attendants, Pearl Bartlett and Bessie Shoup; Michal, king's daughter, Louise Dose; sentinels, James U. Russell, Will Todd; men-of-war, Messrs. Oscar Mehornay, G. L. True and B. E. Lindsley. The chorus of shepherds and the chorus of women were very effective and the costuming and stage accessories left nothing to be desired.

The cantata was given in ten scenes, beginning with the "Feast of Trumpets" at Bethlehem, and closing with the coronation of David. The song of Michal. "O. Shepherd Fair," in scene 5, was one of the prettlest in the cantata; the duet by David and Jonathan in the forest of Ziph was most enthusiastically encored, and the duet by David and Jonathan in the forest of Ziph was most enthusiastically encored, and the duet by David and Abigail in scene 9 was very fine. very fine. Mr. Olmi as King Saul could scarcely have been improved upon; he was in excellent voice and filled the difficult role with dignity and judgment. Mr. Ormsby was an ideal David, and whether in the coarse garb of the shepherd boy before King Saul or kneeling in kingly robes himself at the coronation, he was equal to the occasion and rose to the highest conception of the character of the shepherd king. It may be truly said of the presentation of the cantata as a whole that there was a total absence of the amateurish and that it was in every way worthy of the splendid audience by whom it was given so appreciative and enthusiastic a reception.

TO SEE THE GOVERNOR.

Colonel Gross and Major Fleming Will Confer With Him Over War Preparations.

Colonel George P. Gross and Major Fred Fleming, of the Third regiment, went to Jefferson City last night for an interview with the governor regarding the condition with the governor regarding the condition of the regiment. It was said at the armory of the regiment that their visit to the capital was a voluntary one and had not been ordered by the executive. The recent addition of new recruits, for whom there are no uniforms, is the cause of the trip. Captain E. J. Griffith, who has been recruiting a new company for the regiment, had his men out at the armory last night. The number so far enrolled is fifty-six and new applications are coming in every day. Captain Griffith sent his enrollment papers to Jefferson City yesterday for sanction. The new company will be mustered into the regiment next week. Not all of his men can be called raw recruits. Some of them have seen hard service before, and are anxious to try it again. These men have had military training: C. B. Hyde, company D, and company G. Third regiment, four years service; R. L. Deputy Bank Examiner Waterman, of Kansas, filed a report in the district court in Kansas City, Kas., yesterday, in which he censures Receiver W. H. Bridgens, of the defunct Citzens' bank, of Kansas City, Kas., for permitting lawyers to absorb so much of the bank's assets. Mr. Waterman refers to the Kansas City, Kas., attorneys in his report as being "buzzards." He says that they swarmed around the fallen bank as buzzards and eagles do about a new born lamb. He suggests that the court take some steps to compel them to disgorge, and that they be prevented from feasting on the defunct institution and the creditors of the bank be given a show to realize something. DIVERSION IN THE MONOTONOUS REIGN OF LAWLESSNESS.

Home of C. G. Newman Entered and Robbed Yesterday Afternoon-Many Recent Burglaries in That Neighborhood.

To vary the monotony of their reign of lawlessness, daylight robberies were introduced yesterday afternoon by Kansas City burglars. The home of C. G. Newman, 1603 East Ninth street, was entered about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and all the money and jewelry in the house was appropriated.

Mrs. Newman and her aunt, Mrs. Steele, who is visiting her, went downtown yester-day afternoon about 2 o'clock to do some shopping. Mrs. Newman is positive she carefully locked all the doors of the house. They returned about 5 o'clock, and, when Mrs. Steele went to her room, she found her trunk had been opened and ransacked. A breastpin, which had been left on the dressing case in the room, was also gone, and a pocketbook in her trunk, which contained about $15, was missing. She went down stairs and told Mrs. Newman that she had been robbed. They made an investigation of the house. The back door stood wide open. Mrs. Newman then found that a burglar had gone through her room also, taking a ring, a pocketbook containing some small change and a number of silver and gold ornaments which had been left on the dresser. She was thoroughly alarmed, and went to the neighbors, but none of them had seen anyone enter or leave the house.

The daring of the robbery is shown when the location of the house is considered. It stands in a very closely built block of frame houses, and is the second from the corner.

The back porches of the houses are directly in line with each other, and Mr. Newman's back porch and yard are in full view of the kitchen of the house at 965 Vine street, around the corner. In order to get to the back porch the burglar or burglars would have to pass between Mr. Newman's house and the home of A. W. Millspaugh, 1995 East Ninth street, and then mount the steps to the back porch in full view of the neighboring houses. One or more burglars did this yesterday afternoon and unlocked the back door with a skeleton key, but none of the neighbors noticed any stranger about the back part of the house. The burglar took the precaution to take nothing that he could not carry in his pockets without attracting special attention.

The burglar took the precaution to take nothing that he could not carry in his pockets without attracting special attention.

Mr. Newman, who is a member of the wholesale hardware firm of Bonniwell, Newman & Calvin, 1307 Union avenue, reached his home about 6 o'clock. He secured a description of the missing articles and went to police headquarters immediately and gave the details of the robbery to Inspector Halpin. He said he had lived in the same house for twelve years and had never had a servant and knew of no one besides himself and his wife who had a key to the back door, or who was familiar with the inside of the house. The Inspector was inclined to believe that the robbery was committed by some one who knew where the money and jewelry was kept, but Mr. Newman declared that he was positive the house had been entered by professional burglars.

The robbery of Mr. Newman's home is strangely coincident with the robbery of the home of A. W. Millspaugh, the veteranticket agent at the Union depot, who lives the next door cast. Five years ago a burglar entered Mr. Millspaugh; home at exactly the same time of day, in the same manner and took the same kind of articles that were taken from Mr. Newman's home. The robbery yesterday was also within a block of the Howell and Wright houses, which were entered and robbed two weeks ago. Early Thursday morning R. E. Payne, a clerk in the office of the Kansas City Gas Company, was held up by three men directly in front of Mr. Newman's house. One of the men jumped out of Mr. Newman's house and some even went into the front yard to examine the bullet hole made in the front porch when one of the footpads shot at Mr. Payne.

streets. The name of W. C. Scarritt, the name of the ex-police commissioner, had been forged to the check, but the name was spelled "Scarett." Written on the check was "Five dollars and sixty cents," but in the corner was the figure $8. The check was drawn on the National Bank of Commerce and made payable to Charles Frazee. When placed under arrest Frazee claimed he had been given the check by two other men who said it was all right.

Frank Wilson was a jolly tar who had the decks cleared for action and a great deal of Grand avenue whisky on board when Officers Vassar and Quinn rounded him up at Nineteenth and Grand last night and steered him to No. 4 police station, where he was locked up for investigation. Wilson claimed he was a deserter from the Brooklyn navy yards. He was too much under the influence of whisky to tell when or how he had deserted. "He may be a Spanish sympathizer or a burglar, from all I can get from him," said Lieutenant Weber, in charge of No. 4 station.

Quarles' Case Appealed.

Attorney Ben S. Henderson, in behalf of C. B. Hewlett, filed an appeal bond with Judge Pfost, of the North side city court, in Kansas City, Kas, yesterday, in the Quaries case. Mr. Hewlett expects to get the case into the district court by virtue of the jury taxing the costs of the trial against him.

of the jury taxing the costs of the trial against him.

There was one peculiar feature about the arrest and trial of Chief Quarics. He was arrested in the forenoon, the jurymen immediately chosen and the case called for hearing in the afternoon. Tuesday is the regular criminal day in Judge Pfost's court, but instead of setting the case for trial on the regular day it was called within three hours after the arrest was made. The arrest, trial and verdict were accomplished in one day.

THE NEWS AT LEAVENWORTH, to O. J. Snyder, lot 7, block 20, Day's sub-Leavenworth Coal Company to Start a New Venture-Alexander Dies

From His Wounds. The Leavenworth Coal Company is preers steady employment during the summer ers steady employment during the summer months. It will enter the market at Kansas City, from which point it expects to get a large trade. This purpose has been under contemplation for some time, and now all plans are perfected. The company has recently purchased the large transfer steamer Parker, from St. Louis, and the boat is now being fitted up for its future use. It is a side wheel steamer, 270 feet long, fifty foot beam and draws twenty-two inches of water. The company is making preparations for the construction of 100 cars of a special design. The cars are to be hopper bottomed and to have a capacity of ten tons each. These will be loaded at the shaft and run directly onto the boat, in which condition they are to be taken to Kansas City. A track is to be laid from the Kansas City landing to a warehouse, into which the cars will be run and the coal dumped.

The boat is expected to carry eighty cars and to make the south trip in about three hours and return in five. It is the intention to have the steamer make a trip every other day. This plan has been decided on by the company on account of the excessive freight rate, which has virtually prevented competition in the Kansas City market. At present the miners are not working half time, but it is thought that this move will give the men steady employment. nonths. It will enter the market at Kansas

A Great War Book.

A Great War Book.

One of the most noziceable books of the times is "Our Country in War and Our Relations With Foreign Nations," by Murat Halstead, the great war correspondent and editor, published by the National Edcational Union, Chicago. It is a graphic review of our army, navy and coast defenses, our relatiors with Spain, Cuba and all foreign nations, It compares Spain and the United States, describes the Spanish army, navy and coast defenses, and tells of their strength and weakness. The author carefully arralyzes our relations with all the nations of the earth and their probable action in carr fight with Spain. The history of Cuba is told in a vivid and interesting way. Perhaps no man living could write a book like this so well as Murat Halstead, whose work as a correspondent in Cuba, in the civil war, in the Franco-Prissian war; whose friendship for such men as Bismarck. Von Moltke, Grant, Sherman, Lee, McKinley and scores of other statesmen and generals, and whose wide experience as a journalist have peculiarly fitted him for this work. The book is certainly right up to date and contains the information the people now want.
